

the NeoWiki project

NeoWiki is the name of an Internet project, a web encyclopedia in neonatal medicine. Just like Wikipedia! A NeoWiki could develop into a useful knowledge resource for health professionals in neonatal medicine, all over the world.

I would like to stress that a NeoWiki is still an idea and vision - to create a steadily growing database of clinical guidelines. There are a number of principal and practical issues before a web site can be launched.

To join the project group and discuss the NeoWiki project, you need to be a 99nicu member. All discussions will take place in the 99nicu web community. If you are not already a member, please register at <http://99nicu.org/forum/register.php>

Registration is free. If you need registration help, please email info@99nicu.org

Join the NeoWiki project group and find the discussion forum

1. Go to <http://99nicu.org/forum> and log in using your username and password.
2. Go to your User control panel, by clicking on "User CP" in the top left corner.
3. Find the "Networking" section in the left hand column in your control panel, and click on "Group memberships".

- You will now see the option to join the NeoWiki project group.

The following groups are available for you to join
User Group	Joining Conditions	Join Group
NeoWiki project group	Anyone is free to join this usergroup	<input type="radio"/> Join Group

Once you have chosen to join the group, the screen will inform you about your membership in the NeoWiki project group. If you wish you leave the group, you can do that on this screen by choosing the option "Leave Group".

You are a member of the following groups
User Group	User Title	Leave Group
Registered Users	Member	(Cannot leave primary group)
NeoWiki project group		<input type="radio"/> Leave Group

- Finally... go back to the main page at <http://99nicu.org/forum> Scroll down to the Members Area, and there you will now find the dedicated forum for the NeoWiki discussions.

- Click on the headline "NeoWiki project" and then you will see the discussions. Browse through the various topics and add your comments.
